

Creating active homework tasks

Thomas N. Robb, Ph.D.

tomrobb@gmail.com

First some basic principles (1)

1. Students working at a distance is very different from students coming to your class
 - Seeing what they are doing or what they have done becomes much more difficult
 - It is easier for students who wish to spend more time on other teachers' assignments to pretend that they have done the assignment, to borrow someone else's work or find a suitable response on the Internet

Some basic principles (2)

2. Therefore it is very important that you

- have a way of confirming that they have done the work, and
- an efficient way of providing feedback or a grade on their work

This presentation will suggest ways to accomplish these principles in your distance teaching.

Methods to ensure uniqueness

Make the feedback assignment unique for each individual student, for example

- Write about how you, a relative or friend has experienced something similar to what happened in the reading
- Write a short letter to one of the characters giving your own advice
- Keep a log of what you have read on the Internet
- Keep a list of new vocabulary that you have found

Methods to ensure uniqueness

- Record one paragraph from the story and submit it via WeChat. Count the number of strokes in the first 汉字 of your name and select that paragraph (and the next one, too, so that you have more than 100 words). – Or perhaps use the last digit of their student number.
- Compare two versions of the same story and report what differences you find in the vocabulary that is used.
- Make a list of sentences or phrases that were difficult for you to understand.

What to assign

- No matter where the material is from, students should work on material that is close to their own reading level. Material that is too difficult will not be effective since they will not be able to comprehend it.
- Easy material will lend itself to an “extensive reading” approach where they can read a large volume with little dictionary use to promote their reading fluency and to get a better grasp of how the words and grammar that they already “know” are actually used in ‘real English’.

What to assign

Material that is slightly above their level will challenge them but will allow them to learn new vocabulary and grammar.

If the students can choose what to read among the many selections offered, that will encourage them to do more reading because they will find it more enjoyable.

FACT FILE: Say no to bullying

Bullying can happen to me or you or anyone. Millions of children around the world are bullied every year, but there are things that we can all do to help.

What is bullying?

Bullying is when someone makes you feel bad or hurts you again and again. Bullying can happen at school, out of school or online. Bullying includes:

- calling people mean names
- laughing at people
- telling lies about people
- taking someone's things without permission
- not letting someone play in a group
- hitting people.

What is cyberbullying?

Cyberbullying happens online and includes:

- sending mean messages
- sharing photos without permission
- not letting someone be part of an online group.

What can you do?

If someone is mean to you, tell an adult that you know and like. For example, talk to a parent or a teacher. You can block a person who sends mean messages online. Ask an adult to help you. Don't reply.

Talk to your parents or teacher or an adult that you know well if you see bullying or if you are worried about a friend.

Say sorry if you are mean to someone. You can write a message or talk to the person. Think about how to be kind in the future.

We can all help to say no to bullying.

Talk to your parents or teacher or an adult that you know well if you see bullying or if you are worried about a friend.

Say sorry if you are mean to someone. You can write a message or talk to the person. Think about how to be kind in the future.
We can all help to say no to bullying.

4. What do you think?

What was the most important fact about bullying? What can schools do to stop bullying? What's the best way to say sorry?

What can you do with this reading?

- Have them read the article WITHOUT using a dictionary, asking them to time their reading
- They record their time, then check unknown words and read and time it a second time.

Date	Title of Article	Source	Reading time 1	Reading time 2	Number of new words
08-Aug	Say no to bullying	BC Kids	5'20	3'50	3

- Next, they make a list of any unknown words on a form that you provide, perhaps as an Excel file

Date	Title of Article	Word/phrase	Meaning
08-Aug	Say no to bullying	cyberbullying	网络欺凌

- They can respond to the questions in #4 with their own ideas: “What was the most important fact about bullying?” and “What can schools do to stop bullying?”

Seven tips for a tidy desk

1. Only keep things you really need on and near your desk.

Use a tray for any papers you have to read. Have a jar for pens and pencils and have a bin near your desk.

2. Don't keep any drinks on your desk.

Go to the kitchen when you want to have a drink or, if you prefer, keep a drink on a small table near your desk.

3. Reduce the amount of paper that you use.

Try to keep as much information as possible in folders on your computer. Before printing a document, ask yourself, 'do I really need to read this on paper?'

4. Scan your notes.

If you have a lot of paper (magazine articles, notes, worksheets, etc.), use a scanner and keep a digital version as a PDF on your computer.

What to do?

- Give them as as screenshot just the first 4 of the rules.
- Ask them to think of 3 more rules and report them to you via your course website (if you have one) or perhaps by WeChat.
- Later you can show them the three additonal rules on the website, and perhaps a collection of the ideas from the students in your class.

On her usual walk in the forest, Grace meets an unusual boy.

► Instructions

► Preparation

Tuesday

Going through the forest is my favourite part of the walk. My dog Benji loves it too. I'm Grace. I live on a farm with my parents and I take Benji for a walk most days after school. While Benji's playing, I stop to take a photo of a butterfly. I'm thinking about posting it on Facebook, but then I hear Benji barking. He's jumping and running around a boy. The poor boy looks worried. 'Benji, stop! Come here!' I call and throw him his ball. I'm about to say sorry to the boy, but he's gone.

Wednesday

It's cold today, so Benji and I are walking fast. As we go through the forest, it starts raining so I run. Suddenly, I fall and I'm on my back. OUCH! That hurt!

Then there's someone there and a voice asks 'Are you all right?' I look up and see the boy from yesterday.

I'm OK! I say and the boy helps me up.

Reading text: How to spot fake news

Every time you're online, you are bombarded by pictures, articles, links and videos trying to tell their story. Unfortunately, not all of these stories are true. Sometimes they want you to click on another story or advertisement at their own site, other times they want to upset people for political reasons. These days it's so easy to share information. These stories circulate quickly, and the result is ... fake news.

There is a range of fake news: from crazy stories which people easily recognise to more subtle types of misinformation. Experts in media studies and online psychology have been examining the fake news phenomenon. Read these tips, and don't get fooled!

Summary

We have just shown you British Council sites, but there are others which have an abundance of material that is at the correct level for your students. They can use the British Council online test to discover that for themselves.

You must have a clear strategy for ascertaining that they have actually done their assignments, but in a way that does not cause you too much extra work.

The students keep a record of what they have done that you can view, as needed.
